Ladies and gentlemen drivers, let us tip our hats to German tuner Vath, which has showed that it can do much more than just tweak new Mercs by taking on a complex restoration project and managing to bring a Mercedes-Benz 300 SEL 6.3 back to life. The vehicle belongs to the W109 generation, which was built between 1968 and 1972, and uses an M100 6.3-liter naturally aspirated V8 unit that delivers 250 hp and a peak torque of 510 Nm (376 lb-...
