The 2013 Mercedes SL is a fresh presence on the market, so the tuners are just starting to target the model and we're here to give you the latest development related to this. The R231 SL was recently targeted by MEC Design, which fitted the car (an SL550 was used) with a custom body kit and followed the classic recipe of "add rims and lower" in order to make it stand out without seeming too pumped-up. [...]
