

Seat Exeo Sedan by JE Design

16/04/2009 16:51 by admin

The new SEAT Exeo -or not so new if you consider that it's virtually a renosed previous generation Audi A4- may have only began arriving in dealerships across Europe but the tuning industry is already pumping out sport packages. One of the first companies to get their hands on the Exeo is Germany's JE Design that specializes on the mainstream brands of the VW Group. For the Spanish firm's Mondeo-rivaling sedan, JE Design has launched an aero kit that consists of a new sport radiator grille, a front spoiler, side skirts and a rear apron that incorporates diffuser panel in carbon look.

The car's looks are rounded off with a set of quad tailpipes and JE Design's own mutlispoke light alloy wheels that are available in two dimensions, 7.5x18" with 225/40 R18 tires or 8x19" with 235/35 R19 tires. Buyers can also opt for a lowering kit that brings the Exeo 35mm closer to the ground.

--

Source: carscoop.blogspot.com