Russian tuners TopCar showed their vision about the Porsche Panamera. They called it "Stingray."

Carbon is the main material that engineers used to modify the Panamera's interior. It comes with a checkerboard look and combined with the perforated, quilted nappa leather the interior features many different patterns.

The exterior is changed thanks to the new front bumper, hood from carbon fiber, skirts and for the rear - new bumper, diffuser and 2-part spoiler

From the company claims that these changes improved the Stingray's aerodynamics

The TopCar's Porsche Panamera will debut at Dream Car Show in Moscow at the beginning of April this year.
