Based in Dublin, Ireland tuning company ONYX Concept is well known for customizing cars for only the most distinguished of vehicle owners looking for a high degree of personalization and attention to detail during their build. One of their latest projects includes two new kits for the 2010 Range Rover Sport and Vogue known as Platinum S and Platinum V they include better performance and a full body kit for each vehicle

The upgrades include front and rear bumpers arches and spoilers created from the highest quality FRP, prepregated carbonfiber materials used in manufacturing side vents, front grills and rear difusers.

For its interior, the vehicle has had a truly awesome makeover. It includes the generous use of buffalo-hide leather in various colors and designs.

For a better performance, ONYX raised the power output on diesel models by 30%. Its exclusive V8 5.0L petrol engines generate 635 hp due to an ONYX remap and an ONYX replacement supercharger pulley.
